Attached denim

This fall, when people pull out their boots, they won't be tugging them on over their jeans. Instead, they'll be pulling them over the denim sold at <http://www.thirteendenim.com>. At first glance, they look strange — a pair of capri-length jeans with socks sewn onto the bottoms.

After getting over the oddity of it all, they're really quite practical. The socks ensure that jeans fit into your boots and won't bunch or come undone. The pants cost $230 and come in five different styles and washes, with either striped or black socks.

Dress like the stars

Do you notice tabloid pictures of Lindsay Lohan looking sensational? Do you read fashion magazines religiously to see what's new on the runways?

Now you can dress like your favorite star.

A new book from the editors of Us Weekly called Secrets of Celebrity Style: A Crash Course in Dressing Like The Stars keeps you informed on how to stay chic.

Hepburn, Ingrid Bergman, Uma Thurman and Paris Hilton. It also discusses topics such as dressing for your age and body type.

It gives tips on glamming up an outfit for a night out or what to wear to a summer wedding. The book sells for $19.95 at <http://www.amazon.com>, <http://www.barnesandnoble.com> and <http://www.urbanoutfitters.com>.

Keeping a look

When the makeup starts melting, it may be time for Model in a Bottle. With four to five spritzes, the new product keeps makeup in place, say the creators.

Perfect for weddings, proms; a day at work or school; or for any time you want your makeup to last, according to press materials. The formula, made with aloe vera extract for moisture and scent, works as a matte setting spray. Quick drying, Model in a Bottle absorbs excess oil from the skin and guarantees not to clog pores. Model in a Bottle retails for $18. For information, or to purchase a bottle, visit <http://www.modelinabottle.com> or call (888) 444-5044.

Star light, star bites

Many crave a perfect celebrity smile, but don't want to commit to the lengthy, painful procedures. Now you can switch between a perfect celebrity grin — such as Jessica Simpson — with a pair of prosthetic teeth.

Snap-on teeth slide over the patient's own like a retainer and click into place. To remove, the wearer gives them a gentle push or tug.

A variety of celebrity-inspired looks offered include "The Halle" and "The Gwyneth" for women and "Denzel" and "George" (Clooney) for men.
